ANNOUNCEMENT OF CAPITAL CAMPAIGN

The Board of Directors of the Center for Furniture Craftsmanship is pleased to announce a $2.4 million Capital Campaign to implement the school’s master plan, which was presented in the previous newsletter. The primary goals of the campaign are to construct three new buildings on campus and establish two endowments. These improvements will enable the school to initiate innovative new programs, serve a larger, more diverse audience, strengthen the school as an institution, and advance fine furniture making as a vibrant, contemporary medium of expression.

Most readers of this newsletter are familiar with the Center’s current curriculum of 25 Workshops and two Twelve-week Intensives per year. The improvements made through the Capital Campaign will expand the school’s offerings with:

■ a new Nine-month Program designed for aspiring professional furniture makers and dedicated amateurs who seek in-depth training at the highest standard of excellence, to be situated in a new 5,632-square-foot Main Building;
■ an educational Gallery that will be housed in a new 2,300-square-foot Gallery Building and is expected to serve more than 2,000 residents and visitors to the region each year. The Gallery Building also includes facilities for a central Library and an administrative office; and
■ an innovative Studio Fellowship Program, to be offered in a new 4,544-square-foot Studio Building. This program combines aspects of artists communities and university fellowships by providing advanced creative opportunities for emerging professional furniture makers and for established professionals.

The two endowments established through the Capital Campaign in support of these new programs and facilities are:

■ a $600,000 Studio Fellowship Endowment, income from which will support the fellowships.
■ a $300,000 Long-term Building Maintenance Endowment to fund long-term upkeep of the three new buildings created by the campaign.

The campaign goal also includes $150,000 to retire the school’s current mortgage. This will allow critical funds to be redirected to programs that directly serve students.

The Capital Campaign began in August, 2001 and is on schedule to successfully reach the $2.4 million goal by February.
LIE-NIELSEN JOINS BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Thomas Lie-Nielsen has accepted a three-year term on the Center for Furniture Craftsmanship’s Board of Directors. Lie-Nielsen is founder and president of Lie-Nielsen Toolworks, which ranks among the world’s leading manufacturers of high-end hand planes. “We are extremely fortunate to have Tom on our board,” said the Center’s President, Craig Satterlee. “He brings outstanding management experience, a commitment to excellence, and a clear understanding of the school’s mission.”

A lifelong resident of mid-coast Maine, Lie-Nielsen spent many youthful hours in his father’s boat shop. After graduating from Hebron Academy, he went to Hamilton College where he earned a BA in English in 1977. For the next several years, Lie-Nielsen worked at Garrett Wade, a tool retailer in New York City, before returning to Maine to begin making tools the old fashioned way. His line of tools has grown over the years, and Lie-Nielsen Toolworks now produces a variety of specialized hand planes and hand saws, which are marketed to woodworkers and collectors around the globe. The company currently employs 45 people at facilities in Warren, Maine and Waldoboro, Maine. Lie-Nielsen lives on a farm in Waldoboro with his wife and daughter.

Before joining the Center’s Board of Directors, Lie-Nielsen worked for more than a year as a volunteer on the school’s Capital Campaign Committee. He commented, “I am especially excited to be joining the Board at this time. The school has developed a compelling vision for the future and I’m pleased to have one of the country’s foremost furniture making schools right here in Maine.”

More information on Lie-Nielsen Toolworks may be found at its web site: www.lie-nielsen.com.

GROUND BREAKING NEWS!

The Center for Furniture Craftsmanship’s Capital Campaign took a major step forward in December with the announcement of a $250,000 Challenge Grant from the Kresge Foundation in Troy, Michigan. To receive the grant, the school must successfully reach the Capital Campaign goal of $2.4 million by February 1, 2004, the scheduled date for ending the campaign.

“This grant is especially significant,” says Campaign Committee Chair Rick Kellogg. “Because Kresge has the most rigorous selection process of any foundation in the country. A Kresge Foundation Challenge Grant signifies that an organization is outstanding across the board in terms of programs, administration, governance, financial management, and social responsibility.”

The Kresge Foundation is an independent, private foundation created by the personal gifts of Sebastian S. Kresge. It is not affiliated with any corporation or organization. Grants are made toward projects involving construction or renovation of facilities and the purchase of major capital equipment or real estate. Grant recipients have raised initial funds toward their respective projects before requesting Foundation assistance. Grants are made on a challenge basis, requiring the raising of the remaining funds, thereby insuring completion of the projects. Approximately 160 grants are awarded each year through a highly competitive application process.

JOHN DeMOTT (St. Louis, Missouri) is marketing a table saw splitter of his own design. For more information, visit his web site at: www.jdwoodworking.com. John also writes, “After taking Brian Boggs’ chair making course last September, I received a commission to make six dining chairs from the prototype I made in class. They are cherry with steam bent walnut slats and upholstered seats. Brian’s help was invaluable not only for the technical aspects, but for the confidence he gives to dive into such a project.”

MICHAEL GOLDMAN (Rockland, Maine) taught a hand tools course in the Spring session of the adult education program at Camden Hills Regional High School. An article by STEVE HAMMER (Brooklyn, New York) on solid-wood carcasse construction appears in the May/June issue of Fine Woodworking (#163). Steve originally designed the piece in the article as the second project of his Twelve-week Intensive, back in Spring 2001.

Nurse-turned-woodworker SAM JONES (Novato, California) has opened a web site featuring his current work, called www.gratefulwood.com. MARK KIMBLE (York, Maine) collaborated with Chris Pye, as proof-reader and editor, in the production of Chris’ new on-line book, The Accomplished V Tool. The Center’s current Studio Fellow, LIBBY SCHRUM (Georgetown, Texas), has been accepted into the Rhode Island School of Design’s Graduate Program in Furniture Design. Way to go Libby!

EYRICH STAUFFER (Montpelier, Vermont) has gone into business as a builder/woodworker and is currently constructing a handicapped-accessible tree house for the Hole in the Wall Gang Camp in Ashford, Connecticut. The tree house involves 28 trees, 2,800 square feet of ramp, and 1,200 square feet of deck 20’ above the ground. DIANE STONE (New Gloucester, Maine) has finished renovating a 200-year-old barn on her property into a 600-square-foot workshop. Diane left her previous career as an insurance adjuster to launch into life as a professional woodworker.
